

Stephen Cave

Writer

Stephen Cave is Director of the Institute for Technology and Humanity, and Academic Director of the Leverhulme Centre for the Future of Intelligence, at the University of Cambridge.

Stephen earned a PhD in philosophy from Cambridge. He then joined the British Foreign Office, where he served for nearly a decade as a policy advisor and diplomat before returning to writing and academia.

Agents

Robert Kirby
0203 214 0800

Assistant
Olivia Davies
odavies@unitedagents.co.uk
020 3214 0884

Publications

Non-Fiction

Publication Details	Notes
---------------------	-------

Immortality: The Quest to Live
Forever and How It
Drives Civilization

2012

Biteback

Who wants to live forever? According to Stephen Cave, we all do - every single one of us. And the evidence is all around. Eluding the Grim Reaper is humanity's oldest and most pervasive wish. But all our many strategies for defying death fall into four simple categories — the four paths to immortality. Ranging across continents and cultures, from ancient Egypt to cutting-edge laboratories, IMMORTALITY raises the curtain on what compels us humans to keep on going and whether we can keep on going forever.

“A must-read exploration of what spurs human ingenuity... Cave presents an extremely compelling case – one that has changed my view of the driving force of civilization as much as Jared Diamond did years ago with his brilliant book Guns, Germs and Steel.”

— S. Jay Olshansky, New Scientist

“An epic inquiry into the human desire to defy death – and how to overcome it... Cave meticulously follows the right path to the right conclusion, rightly stated.”

— Julian Baggini, Financial Times

“Thoughtful and beautifully clear.”

— John Gray, The New Statesman
