

Dexter Flanders

Writer

Dexter trained at RADA as an Actor. He is now writing with a particular focus on stories of the unvoiced.

In 2018 FOXES was a finalist for the Alfred Fagon Award for Best New Play of the Year. It received its world premiere at London's Theatre503 in 2021, transferred to Seven Dials Playhouse in 2022 in London's West End and then onto New York in 2023 at 59E59 as part of their Brits off Broadway season. The playtext is published by Methuen.

FOXES

★ ★ ★ ★

Gary Naylor, Broadway World

"Foxes provides a voice to a community too often marginalised by theatre and demonstrates that the stories that emerge as a result have a universal resonance. More please."

★ ★ ★ ★

Simon Button, Attitude

"Perfectly paced by director James Hillier across its three acts and Flanders' script is superb"

★ ★ ★ ★

Kate Wyver, The Guardian

“Shattering tale of faith and family - Dexter Flanders’ tender debut about a fractured family shows the tensions and compromises faced by Black gay men”

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Richard Beck, Broadway Baby

“Everything works together in this stunning production to create a groundbreaking theatrical triumph.”

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Lily Middleton, Everything Theatre

“Foxes is a powerful and emotional play with a voice that deserves to be heard.”
