

Harry Trevaldwyn

Harry Trevaldwyn is an actor, writer and comedian. In 2022, he was listed as a Screen International Star of Tomorrow.

After initially rising to fame through writing and starring in his own online skits, Harry's Channel 4 pilot – BILLI – was released in the spring of 2022. Harry wrote, starred and associate produced. Ben Palmer directed. Big Talk produced with Robert Popper and Caroline Leddy exec producing. Harry was nominated for Best Debut Writer for his work on the pilot at the New Voice Awards 2023.

He has projects in development with numerous leading production companies and has taken part in multiple writers' rooms for both major domestic and international television projects.

As an actor, Harry's rise has been meteoric. After making his screen debut in a small role in Netflix's THE KING opposite Timothee Chalamet, Harry went on to play a more significant role in Judd Apatow's Netflix feature – THE BUBBLE. Variety wrote of Harry's performance: "Harry Trevaldwyn (there's at least one breakout star in every Apatow movie, and this Instagram impressionist all but steals The Bubble)."

Harry then went on to play the regular role of Ollie in TEN PERCENT, the English language adaptation of CALL MY AGENT, for Amazon Prime Video. He will soon be seen in a lead role in indie feature, SWEET SUE, which set for release in UK cinemas in December 2023, and in a regular role in Sky Max's comedy series – SMOTHERED. He will also be seen opposite Craig Roberts, Julia Davis and Cobie Smulders in Jamie Adam's semi-improvised indie feature – OR SOMETHING LIKE IT.

Further upcoming credits include a regular role in THE OUTLAWS for BBC One, a recurring role in a major IP series for Disney+ and another recurring role Amazon Prime Video's MY LADY JANE.

Harry will spend the first months of 2024 filming a supporting lead role in a tentpole feature for a global studio. Further details are under wraps for now!
