

Hannah-Marie Holwell

Hannah-Marie is a writer and historian based in the South West. She loves uncovering untold tales from the past, especially the ancient to medieval periods, and bringing them to life. By day, she lectures in classics, with a specialism in Roman history and a passion for using her research to connect with new audiences through public engagement, publications, and broadcasting. When not at her desk, she can usually be found getting delightfully lost on a country footpath.
