REVIEWS

WITHOUT YOU (Menier Chocolate Factory)

Daniel A. Weiss leads a powerful five piece band and the show, directed by Steven Maler, moves with grace and fluidity, owing a considerable debt to the amazing lighting of Tim Mascal. (Toronto Star)

All credit to director Steven Maler for ensuring this production was dynamic; also to the rather brilliant lighting design of Tim Mascal, which was staggeringly beautiful at times, enhancing the musical and narrative journey with a perfectly timed flash or fade. (One Stop Arts)

THE SERPENT'S TOOTH (Almeida Theatre at Shoreditch Town Hall)

Immersion in this production is complete, a testament to Signe Beckman's masterful design, and a tribute to Tim Mascal's and Steven Brown's lighting and sound (Hackneylive.com)

Tim Mascal's lighting design, unobtrusive and yet atmospheric, leaves the theatregoer/prisoner just enough light in the hallways and lights the windowless cells in near ominous fashion ... the space is utilised to uncomfortable, prison-like perfection (Onestoparts.com)

GOOD GRIEF (Theatre Royal Bath)

The set, paired with Tim Mascal's lighting design, was delightful (A Younger Theatre.com)

CHALET LINES (Bush Theatre)

Sian Breckin's Paula is a brief glimmer of hope, reflected in the utterly gorgeous funfair-inspired lighting design from Tim Mascal. (There Ought To Be Clowns)

Leslie Travers' breathtaking set of an exploded Butlins chalet is a thing of beauty, incorporating Tim Mascal's lighting to create a sense of magic. (Partially Obstructed View)

BLOODY POETRY (Jermyn Street Theatre)

Tim Mascal's expansive lighting design creates intimacy and a connection with the audience. (Remote Goat)
